

UnTuckIt Shirts

Host is doing a joke about the UnTuckIt shirts: ‘Have you seen these UnTuckIt shirts. That’s all they are – just untucked shirts. That company has been solving non-existent fashion problems through sheer laziness since 2016. Now they’re branching out into other articles of clothing. Take a look.’

They show a 60-second badly-produced commercial of other products invented by the UnTuckIt shirt company. These are articles of clothes that have been worn in a casual way forever. Even with the “improvements”, they really don’t look any better or different.

Examples:

Shirts that look good with the sleeves rolled up.

Shirts that look good with two buttons unbuttoned.

Pants that look good with the legs crossed.

Ties that look good loosened.

Ties that look good completely untied.

Eyeglasses that look good on the top of your head.

Eyeglasses that look good with one endpiece in your mouth.

Eyeglasses that look good when you’re winking.

Bras and tighty whities that look good thrown on the floor.

Show bras and tighty whities on the floor, then pan up to The Rock in bed. The covers on the other side lift revealing Betty White in bed with him. Betty White says, “I like my clothes the way I like my men – lifeless on the floor at the end of the night.”, as she violently pushes The Rock out of bed. Appearing as a tagline at the bottom of the screen superimposed over the now unconscious Rock and discarded shirts, pants, ties, and glasses on the floor is, “UnTuckIt – Because You’ll Fall For Anything™”.